

PSYCHOLOGICAL STUDY

CONDUCTED BY: JENELL L. HOLSTEAD

Important Notice:

Jenell Holstead, a doctoral graduate student at Indiana University, is conducting a study on the psychological impacts of Robinow Syndrome. This research will look at psychological implications and may benefit our understanding of this syndrome.

Jenell will be attending the 9th Biennial Robinow Convention in Minneapolis this June in hopes of recruiting participants for the research. Individuals affected with dominant and recessive Robinow Syndrome, as well as family members of those affected can participate in the study. The study will involve answering simple questions. The questions should only take about 30 minutes to complete.

For those who will not be at the conference, Jenell would like to mail you copies of the questionnaires so that you can still participate. If you have Robinow Syndrome or someone in your immediate family has Robinow Syndrome and you would like to take part in the study, please email Jenell at: jholstea@indiana.edu, or contact her at 812-606-4036. Thank you!!

If you have any questions or would like more information about the study, please contact Jenell directly. Thank you!!!
